NORTHWEST MISSOURI STATE COLLEGE

VOL. 25—NO. 1

Maryville, Missouri | September 17, 1965

President R. P. Foster's Words of Welcome

Welcome! Welcome to the Northwest Missouri State College.

At the outset, I should like to greet all you upperclass students and to assure you that it is good to have you back. We missed you during the summer vacation and it is truly a pleasure for all of us to have you return.

To you freshmen, may I say that you are a source of considerable pride to us. We are proud to have you in our "family" and we are particularly proud that you have chosen this college. I can assure you that the upperclass students, the faculty, and the administration will do all possible to make this a profitable and happy experience for you. There is always an air of expectancy and enthusiasm at the beginning of a new year. Perhaps this year it is more evident than before. We have the largest freshman class, as well as the largest student body, in the history of the college. Our faculty has been increased by the addition of 30 faculty members. We have a new and very beautiful Fine Arts Building and work is already underway on two new seven-story dormitories. Soon work will begin on a new dining facility and on a large addition to the Union Building, as well as on an addition to the power plant. By mid-year, work will begin on the new science building. Yes, we are growing, and it is exciting.

Those are all important factors in determining the success of any institution. However, I believe that the most important ingredients of a successful college remain the students and the faculty. I do not believe we can find a better representative group on any campus in this region. You can make this college truly great, and I believe you will. I hope this year proves to be your finest!

PROUD OF THE NEW FINE ARTS BUILDING in anticipation of a year of use of its modern facilities are Nancy Harvey, Bethany; Robert Sunkel, acting chairman of the

Fine Arts Building Houses Art, Music, Speech Activities

Students returning to MSC this fall are marveling at the new Fine Arts Building located at the south end of the campus.

The $1,350,000 structure houses the Division of Art as well as some activities of the Department of Speech and Drama. It is the first building on campus of truly contemporary design, having glass and aluminum curtain walls.

The new recital hall will seat 550. The stage itself is 45 feet deep with a scene room located behind it. It also features a cyclorama, a half circle covering over the back of the stage, providing realistic outdoor scenery.

New lighting advantages include projection, light, and sound booths located at the rear of the auditorium and an enlarged catwalk to provide better light adjustment. The lighting equipment alone is valued at $80,000.

The theater is primarily designed for musical comedy and other large stage productions. Ballets, symphonies, and other musical productions will also be presented in the new building.

With the section five times larger than the former art area, the Department of Art headed by Robert Sunkel, will have a gallery off the main lobby and additional exhibition space in the first and second floor corridors.

On the first floor are a gallery, design studio, jewelry workshop, main painting studio, small woodworking shop, the office of the chairman, and an additional office. The second floor provides additional office space, a slide library, a large lecture room, a print studio with darkroom, a drawing studio, and general classrooms.

The Division of Music, headed by Dr. John L. Smay, will have space on three floors.

Individual lockers for Music and Art students and student study rooms are other important facets of the service provided by the new facility. The orchestra pit can be lowered to the first floor or raised to make an apron on the stage.

Terry Crain Competes For Miss KMA Title

Miss Terry Crain, '68, is one of four state contestants in the Miss KMA beauty contest who are being entertained at a round of events today in Omaha.

Tomorrow the girls representing Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska will appear before an audience in Shenandoah for final judging. The winner will reign as queen of the Farm-Industry Day, which will mark the 40th anniversary of the Shenandoah Radio Station. She will receive a mink stole.

Student Leaders Plan Activities

Student government at MSC materializes in the form of the Student Senate, a student-elected body concerned with presenting the collegians' side of the over-all picture of campus life.

New, Expanded MSC Faculty To Pace Larger Enrollment

As a part of the over-all increased service to students, the college faculty has been expanded to a record total in order to keep pace with the increased enrollment.

In the Department of Art, Robert L. Blackman, MS, Kansas State College, will teach ceramics and sculpture. He has been chairman of the art program in Wichita's public schools since 1959. Maurice W. Silver, master's degree, University of Minnesota, will also be teaching art.

New biology instructors are David A. Easterla, MA plus graduate work, MU, who will be an assistant professor, and Gerald Kirk, who has done graduate work at Stillwater, Tahlequah, and Tulsa.

Roger T. King, master of business administration, Texas Technological College, and Charles R. Vitaska, MA, Southern Illinois University, are teaching in the division of business.

Give and You Shall Receive

At a Tuesday luncheon, Bob Bosch, '69, spoke to the MSC faculty on his expectations and ambitions as a college freshman. His address, representative of the freshman class, follows:

President Foster, Administration officials, members of the faculty, and President Taylor:

Three months ago I was a high school boy; today I am a college man. With half a day of college under my belt, I have officially launched my academic career in higher education. I'm beginning where I began my first days of school: the campus of Northwest Missouri State College. I can't remember a day since then when I haven't planned on attending college. Today, however, terms like higher education and numbers like 1,400 freshmen dwarf me. And the longer I talk — especially among this group — the smaller I feel.

Man is by nature a nervous creature. His anxieties and tensions help gear him to accomplishing the unaccomplishable. I know that college is not invincible because you and many others have succeeded. More importantly I know that one day maybe four years ago or maybe many years before I was born, you were as I am now — scared to death.

I'm worried about this speech. I'm especially worried about getting the classes I want. I will worry about the first day of classes and the last, the initial grade and the final one. But worry didn't write a book, discover Sabin oral vaccine, or build a beautiful Fine Arts Building. Worry alone cannot land a man on the moon or prevent escalation of the war in Viet Nam. It takes work and it takes men, mature people with a dedicated and enthusiastic outlook.

Today I am not faced with any problems as difficult as those. Today, however, I prepare for tomorrow. Today I meet the challenges of the college classroom, the social demands of MSC, the responsibilities of collegiate life. I have to study; I have to pay the bills; I have to channel my tension and worry. No one else. I called myself a college man, but I haven't really met that many tests of maturity. I will meet them in the four years ahead, and I will fail some of them. But I know that as long as I try, there will always be someone to help.

I've hardly begun college, yet I see people here who have already helped me: my grade school teachers, Miss McKee, Miss Ross, Mrs. Knittel, Miss Gorsuch, Mrs. Graham; my high school teachers, Mrs. Browning and Mrs. Eckert; my scoutmaster, Dr. Foster; explorer advisors, Dean Thate and Charles Fry; Dean Koerble, and my good neighbor, Everett Brown. Numerically speaking, that's a tremendous student-faculty ratio. You have helped me, and I know that you'll have to again. I am and will be indebted.

There's a way to pay it off, though. Several years ago during my initiation into the Tribe of Mic-O-Say, an honorary Scout organization, I made a promise to help other people as much as some people already had helped me.

Three months ago I was a high school boy; today I am a college man; four years from now I will be sitting where you are or I will be in a similar situation where I will encounter another "frightened freshman." I hope I will be able to help him. Then I will truly be the man I was talking about.

The class of '69 will have fun in their four years on campus. But we came to learn, to prepare ourselves for a livelihood, to become better educated citizens. You came to teach, to help prepare us. I hope you demand a lot from us. Who knows? Some of us may reach those high goals you set for us. Numbers — like 1,400 — are not a proper claim to fame, but accomplishment is. We, the class of '69, are certainly going to give you a run for our money in the classroom, on the football field, and in all phases of the human development center known as MSC.

You too give and contribute. You give up financial success to some degree. You certainly aren't here for the money. You must give of your time, your knowledge, your understanding and compassion — especially with us confused freshmen at times.

You know . . . It has no fancy wrap. It bears no scarlet ribbon, but it will surely ring a Christmas bell in the heart of the recipient. It can bring glowing love to a child, give confidence and direction to a teenager, and give reassurance to an older person. It can calm the frightened. It can comfort the lonely. It can give hope to those who feel they live on the outskirts of our society. It is worth a thousand tinseled packages. It is the greatest gift of all. . . An unselfish act of human kindness.

Here to Stay or to Stray?

Rockaway Beach, Colorado towns and cities, Surf Cities throughout the nation are quiet. The action is in Colden Hall, on Rickenbrode Athletic Field, and at the back-to-school dance.

Geared to summer's activity, we nearly 4,000 young men and women came in trickles and purts to attend Northwest Missouri State College, to become college students. As "Bearcats," we will grow socially and athletically as well as intellectually.

Or we will fail to grow.

And whom can we blame?

We owe it to ourselves to achieve intellectually — especially if we are paying the bill. We may be obligated to an organization or institution which is footing the costs of college.

Here with only the best intentions to make big people out of little ones, the faculty deserves reciprocal dedication and attitude. They are eager to work with students equally ambitious. Unfortunately, not everyone came to learn.

Some students have been here before. Others are new to the campus but not to college. Many men and women are attending college for the first time. Many, besides seniors, however, are here for what will be the last time.

And who will be to blame?

Student Teachers;

Students who plan to student teach the second semester should read the announcement on the bulletin board next to Room 104 Colden Hall, according to Milan B. Dady, director of student teaching.

Seniors May Compete For Danforth Awards

Seniors who plan to study for a PhD and enter college teaching are invited to compete for Danforth Graduate Fellowships for the 1966-1967 school year.

The one-year awards, to be announced in March, 1966, are normally renewable for a total of four academic years of graduate study. Fellowship stipends depend on individual needs. Current annual limits are, single student, $1,800; married, $2,200, plus dependency allowances for children; and required tuition and fees.

All interested seniors are urged to contact James R. Saucerman, English instructor, CHI 115, before Oct. 8.

Grapplers to Meet

A meeting of all prospective wrestling candidates in the classroom of Lamkin Gym at 4 p. m., Thursday, has been announced by Coach Jerry Landwer.

Calling All Singers

Attention, Students:

Now that the confusion of registration has passed (for freshmen particularly), check your time and see if you haven't an opening for your favorite musical activity — Singing.

We want your support in chorus activity on Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m. Come and join us at the new Fine Arts Building, Room 108.

Notable Quotes

DR. LEON MILLER: Constancy of attendance is one indication of achievement.

DR. JAMES GLEASON: Here at Northwest Missouri State College are vitally interested in a strong academic program. We believe a teacher will not be a success without that background.

DR. CHARLES THATE: Students absent either the day before or after a holiday will lose one hour's credit.

LUTHER BELCHER: The college has a good $500 student hospital and surgical insurance policy for $13 a year.

PRESIDENT R. P. FOSTER: We must have and will have a very fine MSC library.

We must have time to sympathize and understand with our students. I have no use for a cheat or a liar, but I think we should go out to help a student who needs help.

DEAN CHARLES KOERBLE: Look at the people sitting both sides of you. Only one of the three will graduate from college.

All students must register their cars or face a $10 fine and/or dismissal.

Fall Enrollment Sets Record

At the close of registration Saturday, 3,741 students had enrolled for the fall semester.

This is an increase of 498 over last year, when enrollment covering the same period totaled 3,243. The final figure last fall was 3,282.

Past data indicates that this year's record number of students is 14.5 times the size of the student body in 1921. In that year total fall semester enrollment was 238; in 1940, 1,042; in 1955, 1,222; and in 1962, it totaled 2,454.

When enrollment for late arrivals, Saturday classes, and graduate work is completed, MSC student population, which includes about 1,400 freshmen, is expected to reach the 4,000 mark.

Bearcats to Open Season In Battle With Wildcats

Coach Ivan Schottel's 1965 Bearcat grid team will open regular season play at 8 o'clock tomorrow night against the Wayne State Wildcats at Rick-enbrode Field.

Last year, the Bearcats defeated Wayne, 18-0, in a mud-spattered contest. With 32 returning lettermen, the Nebraskans will have more depth and experience than last year's team, which ranked third nationally in the NAIA rushing yardage and tenth in total offense. Returning lettermen will fill all offensive positions and all defensive line positions.

Fullback Burt Matthies, 10th leading rusher in the NAIA in 1964; quarterback Dean De-Buhr, Nebraska College Athlete of the Year, and halfback Jerry Kilcoin, the team's leading scorer, will spearhead the Wildcats' offense. All-conference linemen Cliff Schilling, end, and Bob Kruse, guard, will anchor Coach John Jer-mier's line corps.

Injuries to key players may hamper the Bearcats' bid for another win over Wayne.

Commenting on last Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage, Coach Schottel stated that the offense moved well in the first half but looked sluggish in the last half. He also commented that the first unit defense looked good but that they would have to work on pass coverage.

Schottel cited Ed Bryon and Ed Wiskowski, tackles, and Bob Leach, middle guard, for outstanding defensive work in the intrasquad game.

"As a whole, I was well pleased with the scrimmage, but the real test will come when we meet some really tough competition," stated Schottel. "Wayne will be tough—they've got a lot of size and speed."

Field Service Aid Compiles Bearcat Publicity Booklet

Bearcats and their coaches have a twelfth member serving their grid team this year in the press box and behind the typewriter.

After extensive personal research, Jack Gray, jr., new assistant in the Field Service office in charge of college publicity, has compiled and edited a publicity guide book on football at Northwest Missouri State College.

Outstanding features of the booklet include thumbnail sketches of the 15 returning varsity lettermen, with individual pictures, and a thorough analysis of the 1965 Bearcat opponents. The guide also contains short histories of MSC, Bearcat football, and the Missouri Inter-collegiate Athletic Association.

Biographical sketches of the athletic staff leaders, a campus map, and a tentative alphabetical roster are also provided.

Gray published the guide for distribution to over 300 news outlets in the area. In addition it was sent to superintendents and football coaches in the 19-county area of Northwest Missouri and sections of Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas. The booklet will also serve as a complete, accurate history of MSC
